18. Prerace practice

- (1) All teams slated to participate in the races should conduct practice sessions prior to actual competition. Each team shall be allotted four prerace practice times.

Practices shall take place at the Anping Canal, the practice period running from May 21,2019 (Tuesday) to May 30,2019 (Thursday), 9:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m., 1:30 p.m. to 5:30p.m. each day (when registering online, please select four practice times; each time-slot accommodates eight large-scale and four small-scale dragon boats; practice times are allotted on a first-come-first-served basis until all slots are filled). If there are other related matters, it will be announced separately on the official website (<http://www.sports.tn.edu.tw>)

- (2) During practice, large-scale dragon boats must include 12 or more paddlers; small-scale dragon-boats, ten or more. Should there be an odd or insufficient number of paddlers, practice shall not be permitted; should a team drummer be unable to attend, practice may still be carried out.

19. Insurance:

Race organizers shall take out public liability insurance on participating athletes, NT$5.0 million per person (details are set out in the insurer's contract).

Participants are advised not to exert themselves overly strenuously during prerace practice sessions, and to get sufficient sleep and take in adequate nutrition prior to competition. When entering into competition, athletes should assess their physical conditions; above all, they should refrain from exerting themselves beyond capacity. Emergency medical care shall be provided at the racing venue if necessary, but the insurance policy does not cover illnesses brought on by athletes' preexisting physiological maladies. The public liability insurance settles claims only on accidental injuries sustained in the course of competition. Should competitors require other types of insurance (e.g., travel insurance), they must bear the costs themselves.

Note: The scope of public liability coverage:

1. According to law, the insurer shall be liable for third-party injuries, deaths, or third-party property damage incurred by the insured during the period of coverage; the insurer shall be liable under the following circumstances:
 - (1) The insured party or his/her employee: The insurance policy explicitly states that the insurer is liable only for injuries resulting from accidents occurring within the course of the competition.
 - (2) Accidents involving buildings, thoroughfares, machinery or other objects in or on the racecourse.
2. Not insured:
 - (1) Sports injuries resulting from preexisting conditions.
 - (2) Shock, heart disease, heat exhaustion, heatstroke, altitude sickness, epilepsy, dehydration, or other maladies attributable to participants' preexisting physiological conditions.

20. Announcements pertaining to the competition or notifications of postponement due to weather conditions shall be posted at the Tainan Municipal Physical Education Office Network:(<http://www.sports.tn.edu.tw>). Please check for postings.

21. Any matters not covered herein shall be posted and implemented by race coordinators after this document has been amended.

Rules and Regulations for the 2019 Tainan City International Dragon Boat Races

1. Participants shall abide by all rules and regulations.
2. Competition dates: June 3, 2019 (Monday) to June 7, 2019 (Friday). Unless race coordinators announce postponement due to special circumstances, the race schedule will not be affected by weather conditions (during rainstorms races shall take place as usual).
3. Course distance: 300 meters for both large- and small-scale dragon boats.
4. Team in the General Public Division may choose their own helmspersons; helmspersons for teams in all other divisions shall be appointed by race coordinators.
5. A roll-call area shall be set up onshore near the starting line to verify team-member identification; boat boarding shall take place at the canal bank near the starting line.
6. All participating teams shall report to the athletes' rest area 40 minutes prior to the start of the competition, submit team rosters and official participant IDs (limited to those who have preregistered), and await roll call and ID verification; those not reporting to the rest area shall be deemed to have forfeited the competition. With the exception of helmspersons, participants may not take part in more than one team in the same division but may register to participate in other divisions. Team members may not impersonate other participants or falsify names; violation of this rule shall result in team disqualification. Numbers of participants taking part in men and women's mixed divisions must be accurate; should inaccuracies be discovered at starting-line roll call and ID re-verification, the offending team shall be disqualified. Should any team question the qualifications of another participant, a written complaint must be filed 60 minutes prior to the start of competition; no objections may be raised after competition has ended.

7. Team sporting apparel must be neat and uniform, and all participants must present ID badges issued by race coordinators for roll call and verification by race coordinators.
8. Participants may not leave the roll-call area after roll has been called; violations shall result in forfeiture.
9. A race does not begin until the starting pistol has sounded; should a team jump the gun, said team shall be charged with a penalty; a second incidence on the part of the same team shall result in disqualification.
10. After the starting pistol has sounded, the race shall not be halted for any reason.
11. In the course of competition, teams must paddle in race lanes assigned by race coordinators; after reaching the finish line, teams must follow the designated channel to the area specified for turning boats in. Obstruction of race proceedings shall result in penalties and disqualification from competition.
12. Teams must paddle the dragon boats to the starting line within the specified timeframe; delays caused by two incidences of five minutes' tardiness on the part of a single team shall result in said team's forfeiture.
13. Lanes for large-scale dragon boat races extend from the starting line to the finish line; for small-scale dragon boats, race lanes extend from the starting line to the point where the flags are set out.
14. During competition paddlers on large-scale dragon boats must remain seated at all times; violation of this rule shall result in team disqualification. Paddlers must sit facing the prow of the boat, feet drawn in toward buttocks, and buttocks must not leave the seat; rulings on seating-posture shall be made at the discretion of race officials; Paddlers on small-scale dragon boats are not subject to the above limitations.

15. Paddles shall not come into contact with the water surface until the starting pistol has sounded; both large- and small-scale dragon boats are subject to this rule; however, boats and rudders are not subject to this restriction. First-time violators shall be given a warning; a second violation shall result in team disqualification.
16. In large-scale dragon boat races, place winners shall be determined by the order in which boats' prows cross the finish line, from first to last. In small-scale dragon boat races, victory is achieved by capturing a flag; forcibly taking a flag from a team that has already captured said flag shall result in disqualification. (Note: (1) A flag is captured upon removal from flag-holder. (2) Should a team's flag-capturer fall into the water after capturing a flag, the flag shall still be deemed captured. (3) Should a team be first to reach a flag but fail to completely remove it from flag-holder and another team subsequently captures said flag, the latter team shall be declared the winner. (4) Should each of two competing teams fail to capture a flag, the winner shall be decided by drawing lots. (5) Should two competing teams capture flags within five seconds of each other, the winner shall be decided by drawing lots.)
17. During competition, after a dragon boat has reached the finish line, team members must decrease boat speed and return to the starting line. Teams requiring race coordinators' assistance in towing boats back to the starting line should remain in place upon finishing the race.
18. In all races, in addition to a drummer and a helmsperson, large-scale dragon boats must have at least 16 paddlers; small-scale dragon boats, 12 paddlers. Should a team have an odd number of paddlers, said team shall not be permitted to take part in competition.
19. Males may not serve as drummers on women's teams (junior and senior high-school divisions are exempt from this rule); however, women may serve as drummers on men's teams. Helmspersons are not subject to gender restrictions.

20. All teams shall be required to use the dragon boats, paddles, drums, gongs and rudders provided by race coordinators; moreover, teams should check to ensure that all the equipment is in proper working order prior to the start of competition. Should equipment failure occur in the course of a particular race, said race shall be held again; there shall be no exceptions to this rule.
21. Should a member(s) of a team fall into the water after the starting pistol has sounded, said team shall be deemed to have lost the race (flag-capturers who fall into the water after capturing flags are exempted from this rule). Should dragon boats or rudders issued by race coordinators malfunction during a race, said race shall be held again. There shall be no exceptions to this rule.
22. Rule infractions occurring before, during, or after the competition shall be referred to an adjudicating committee. Should circumstances warrant, police may be summoned.
23. Should a team's dragon boat deviate from its prescribed lane and cross over into another boat's lane, said team shall be deemed to have lost the race; however, should a boat be forced to deviate from its lane by uncontrollable circumstances, and the violation is deemed unintentional by a race official and judged as such by a senior official, the race in which said incident occurred shall be held again; noncompliance shall result in forfeiture.
24. To boost team spirit and raise enthusiasm, teams may recruit cheerleading squads for support and encouragement; cheerleading may take any form, provided that it does not disrupt the general event or race proceedings.
25. All participating teams shall obey boarding-area staff members and lifeguards' water safety instructions. All race participants (including team drummers and flag-capturers) must wear lifejackets (from roll call until coming ashore at the end of a race). Failure to comply shall result in team disqualification.

26. Displays of poor sportsmanship, noncompliance with official rulings, or improper protests affecting the orderly proceedings of the event shall result in team disqualification.
27. Registered participants must arrange and undergo physical examinations; only those passing the examinations shall be allowed to participate in the competition.
Representatives registering on behalf of each team shall be responsible for ensuring that all teams members comply with this rule.
28. Should damage be done to any equipment aboard the dragon boats, compensation must be commensurate with the cost of the equipment. There shall be no exceptions to this rule.
29. Should there be objections to referees' rulings, complainants must file appeals within 60 minutes of race's ending and post cash deposits of NT$5,000.
30. All participating teams shall use gongs and drums provided by race coordinators; whistles, and electronic devices such as bullhorns and compact speakers are strictly prohibited; violations of this rule shall result in disqualification.
31. Any unfinished business of these rules shall be implemented by the general assembly after the announcement of the revision
